

Frequently Asked Questions

Allergy Aid was formulated by animal nutritionists in response to the many allergy related concerns troubling today's pets. We have carefully selected ingredients that help make your pet more resistant to the most common triggers of allergic reactions. Allergy Aid gives your pet long term relief of allergies naturally, without dependence upon painful shots or harmful steroids.

If your pet has a dull or brittle hair coat, suffers from "the itches" all over, licks her paws constantly, is troubled by "gunky" ears or runny eyes, try Allergy Aid tablets.

We also recommend Allergy Aid as a supplement to any food but especially Aunt Jeni's Home Made. It contains the recommended dosage of Vitamin C, as well as other ingredients that contribute to a healthy and beautiful skin/coat for your pet.

What are the ingredients?

Vitamin C is a vital part of collagen formation and aids in the rebuilding of skin, coat and other cells. Vitamin C is also a natural anti-histamine, serving to reduce the body's inflammatory response to allergic triggers. AAFCO does not publish any requirement for Vitamin C for dogs, because technically the dog's body can synthesize it. However, providing additional vitamin C has been shown to support the immune system and aid in the reduction of allergy symptoms.

Quercetin provides bioflavonoids, which are helpful in the absorption and metabolism of Vitamin C. They assist vitamin C in performing its many functions within the body. Quercetin has also been proven to fight allergies by reducing or blocking the body's histamine response.

Biotin is a member of the family of B-complex vitamins, and is also known as Vitamin B7. Biotin has been included because of its ability to strengthen your pet's coat and nails while reducing alopecia (hair loss) and the possibilities of skin and yeast infections.

Burdock Root is an herb traditionally associated with skin disorders, chosen because of its known regenerative and cleansing abilities. It is a great blood purifier, ridding the body of allergens and irritants. It increases skin circulation, detoxifies epidermal tissues and reduces the ability of bacteria and fungi to flourish.

Liver and Anchovy Powder provide lots of healthy B Vitamins and essential amino acids, as well as a tasty flavor that makes Allergy Aid tablets taste great to your pet!

For further assistance in the battle against allergies, please consider using our Fish Oil + Vitamin E.
